A new 40-page report from JPMorgan Chase (JPM-US) shows that OpenAI, the creator of ChatGPT, attracts 78% of the daily active users of the AI Core Model website, with six competitors dividing the remaining market share. However, the key question is whether OpenAI can maintain its leading position. JPMorgan analysts are not optimistic.

Chinese artificial intelligence startup DeepSeek originally planned to release its new large-scale AI model, DeepSeek-R2, in May this year. However, according to the Financial Times, persistent technical issues with training using Chinese-made Ascend processors forced it to switch to NVIDIA chips, causing repeated delays in the release of the new model.

US electric car maker Tesla (TSLA.US) released a video on Weibo on Monday showcasing its redesigned Model YL, which will go on sale in China this fall, and said the new version is "coming soon."

Riding the AI Waves

(5) Blind points of AI

Even AI can be used to forecast the future of market trend, but it is not a fortune teller, and cannot be used as fortune telling. You must give them full information before they can do the forecast. We must know what they can and cannot do.

AI is unable to tell you that the main reason why Trump turned his attitude 180 degree in the Alaska meeting. Originally Trump said if there is no ceasefire, the outcome would be very serious. They cannot tell you that Trump might had a deal with Putin to develop the minerals in Siberia so as to replace the attempt of China. They can only tell you the reason for failure and cannot tell why Trump changed his attitude.

For example if you ask the AI, can my girlfriend come with me to a dinner on my birthday? Their answer is that I don't know your girlfriend's schedule, such as her working hours and whether she's in the same city with you so cannot answer. The main point is that normally your girlfriend should spend a time for dinner on your birthday, but why you raise such a question, you have not told me the problem that triggered you to ask. This is the focus.

So in the financial market, if you ask a recent popular question, when will the golden pit comes, they cannot answer. What they can do is to point out the timing it has happened in the past and not telling the future. They can also list out the factors that generates such a golden opportunity and told you to mind that. But they still can have some suggestion, if the golden pit come today, some stocks can buy.

Another point is that I always said about the Mars Landing project, they can give you suggestions on stocks need to buy, but what ratio in this group should occupy in your total investment depends on you rather than AI, for some stocks are not 100% in this group and can be in several groups. NVDA and TSM can be in a lot of groups no matter AI or IT needs it. BA is even wider, can be in military production, travelling, Mars landingetc.
