During his meeting with Chinese leader Xi Jinping, Donald Trump stated that the United States and China will have a "bright future," marking the first visit to China by a sitting US president in nearly a decade. "US-China relations will be better than ever before," he said.

Xi Jinping said that the people of both China and the United States are great people, and that achieving the great rejuvenation of the Chinese nation and making America great again can be done in parallel, mutually beneficial, and for the benefit of the world.

According to TASS, Russian Presidential Press Secretary Dmitry Peskov stated at a press conference that President Putin will soon visit China, with the specific date to be announced soon.

San Francisco-based AI startup Andon Labs opened an experimental café called Andon Café in Stockholm, Sweden. The café is not managed by humans, but by an AI agent named Mona, powered by Google Gemini. The coffee shop looks no different from a regular shop, with baristas responsible for brewing coffee and taking orders, but Mona takes the lead in recruitment, purchasing, inventory, and daily operations decisions.

Market Outlook

The G2 meeting in Beijing is believed to be beneficial to the worldwide stock market. On Thursday morning, European and Asian markets went up and in the evening the US market carried on the uptrend. Let's have a review of the past and outlook of the future.

S&P has a wider representation of the market and is normally referred to by think tanks and governmental departments for policy making. By the end of 2025, most people have an expectation that it would reach 7500 to 7700 points within the year 2026. However, the expectation of the writer is 7900 but quite hard to reach 8000. Since Dec of 2025, it formed a round top. In mid-March, the curve is even lower than the beginning, the situation was quite bad. It continued to curve down but still no prominent selling signal of 2 big black candlesticks. The Iranian War started on Feb 28 and on March 30, already more than a month and thus made the market frustrated that the war still could not be finished. Because of the lesson of the golden pit in 2025, people became paralyzed by the war and bought on bad news and it rebounded till now. The power was so strong that no matter good news or bad news, the only way is to go up without any adjustment. Morgan Stanley just adjusted the target of S&P to 8300. Anyway, there are still no symptoms of adjustment now.

The peculiarity of the US stock market is that when a record high appears, a series of record highs will continue to come on one by one. It is quite hard to guess the top. Don't guess it. Another peculiarity is that most of the time, the USA stock market is running above the 250-SMA. This time is quite dramatic, all 3 major indexes including NVDA just penetrated the 250-SMA and rebound sharply and thus formed the golden pit of 2026. Mind that the jumping gap of S&P is widest, NASDAQ comes second and DJIA the third. The trend of rising in S&P and NASDAQ is supported by the 10-SMA. Actually, NASDAQ leads the market all the way, but since May, the rise of NASDAQ is much faster than S&P.

Why DJIA comes last? It is because they are of traditional components. It is considered as a safe haven. That is when NASDAQ and S&P rocket up and people afraid of adjustment, they will turn to DJIA, therefore people would say when NASDAQ breaks record high, it is the end of that small wave. It is true, but not 100% accurate, most of the time it is like that, but we don't know whether this time is an exception or not. Market is so unpredictable. C'est la vie! (That is life!)

Mind that since May, "the Start of Summer", both NVDA and TSLA had woken up from hibernation and rocket up thus making the PHLX rises sharply. Under the AI trend it is normal, and quite hard to run against the trend. Is it a bubble or just over estimation? Anyway, it is better to follow the trend than running against the trend. People may ask why I seldom talked about the NASDAQ Golden China Dragon Index? Please refer to the attached chart, it is quite simple and clear that is it left behind the general trend and not worthy of talking.

What should investors do now? Don't do short selling! Unless you are Michael Burry, it is for professional traders and not for retail investors. When buying up, your profit is unlimited and your loss is limited to zero only. When selling down, your profit is limited to zero only, and your loss is unlimited. Don't think your loss is limited to money inside your stock account, it would cover every dollar of all the money you earned in the past and future including outside your stock account, bank account and all assets when you are unable to buy back, even though such a chance happens only once in about every 10 years. If it is unluckily you, it is too late to regret! You can only live once! Just think if you are on the winning side of buying up, the exchange house said you cannot get all your profit because the loser was unable to pay, you would say it is crazy and none of your business. It is the responsibility of the loser only.

Remember the 3 major indexes would have adjustment of the components every quarter, that is kicking off sluggish stocks and falling stocks, and adding in rising and energetic stocks. This is one of the reasons why the market goes up continually. The worldwide market follows such a practice. So, it is unwise to have short selling without hedging. Facing record high, some small investors' accounts are diminishing both in profit and asset, how to avoid it? In such a case, if you want to keep the pace with the market, you should buy ETF of 3 major indices in a ratio of 3 NASDAQ, 2 S&P and 1 DJIA, can be divided into months not necessarily all at one time. For DIA pays out dividend every month which is better than QYLD, VOO and QQQ only had dividend every quarter.
